

Kambiz Negahban, MD

Dr Kambiz Negahban is an Assistant Professor of ophthalmology at Boston University School of Medicine Department of Ophthalmology since 2002. He has been the former Director of Cornea and refractive surgery at the department and since 2009 has been the founder and president of Easton Eye Consultants in Massachusetts. He has been the recipient of the surgical teaching award at Boston University, and has published his works in numerous journals and presented in national and international meetings. He's affiliated with Boston Medical Center at Boston University and Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary. He's listed in the 2017 prestigious Castle Connolly Top Doctors in America as voted by his peers. Dr Negahban has had a strong interest in emerging multifocal Intraocular Lens and Femtosecond laser technologies and has been in the forefront of bringing these advances to his patients at Boston University and his private practice.